NEW GRAHAM MINE
DISTRICT LOOKS GOOD

What in the opinion of experts, is one of the most promising copper prospects in Arizona, has been opened up in Graham county about seven miles from the town of Geronimo by the Geronimo Mining company. This company, incorporated under the laws of Arizona, holds 100 claims, aggregating over 2000 acres in extent. So far as can be ascertained by the slight development work which has been done, the property is one of the best mineralized in this portion of Arizona. Low grade ore is to be found at the grass roots, and a shaft sixty feet in depth has been sunk through ore every foot of the shaft's 600 workings, and assessments in various parts of the property indicate that paying ore is to be found at the surface anywhere on the main ledge. J. W. Sterling, the engineer on the ground, in his reports to the company, stated that in his opinion, although the development work was meager, further work would prove one of the most wonderful ore bodies in this part of the state.

Until recently the property was in the hands of the original locators who made little effort to bring their holdings before the notice of mining men. Now a syndicate of Miami mining and business men have organized, and the prospect is in a fair way to be developed, and put in the producing class.

The work of development will be greatly simplified by the fact that the property is only seven miles from a railway, the Arizona Eastern, and a spur to the mine need encounter a grade of only 2 per cent. Ideal locations for a townsite, smelter and mill are to be found on the property, and the proximity of the rich farming districts of the Gila valley will make the Geronimo Mining company property an agreeable and cheap place to live. Mining men who have inspected the property return greatly impressed with its merits.

The lack of operations of the Black Range spurred the management of the Nellie on and with this latest development, it places the Nellie in the limelight as the leading company in the Black Range district, seeking to uncover the massive ore sheet which engineers say underlies the Black Range Belt.

More than twenty companies are operating in the Black Range section, a number of which are close corporations. The Wrigley Exploration Company which is doing extensive tunnel work is operating three shafts and is making 16 feet a day. The Outman Crescent is driving the tunnel with all speed. The Adams is sinking the shaft and has recently cut a stringer which is highly encouraging. The Outman Gold Monster is building a road while a number of other properties are pushing development. The Outman Gold Monster Company has just purchased five additional claims in the Black Range section, and is now negotiating for more property in that district.

Keep your eye on the Black Range is the slogan of many of the operators here. It will surprise the mining fraternity, they say.

The measure plans to add to the already numerous divorces in Arizona and maintain our reputation as a divorce state. These local agents could be informed by means of daily letters from the head office and whenever any of the local points had animals for sale it would be a simple matter to make this fact known. In this way the sanitary board would become the clearing house and livestock center of the cattle industry in the state. They would become well known and outside parties desiring to select animals would find that the sanitary board would be an easy means of making their wants known and securing the kind of stock they desired.

In a similar manner the sheep association could conduct the collection and marketing of bovines. This method would do much to effect cooperation among the livestock men, and it should be educational in the extreme. The advantages of co-operative effort in marketing have not been realized, but it is certain that much improvement will be effected in the future.

Farm Improvement Associations in Arizona have certainly won a permanent place in the agricultural activities of the state. Forty-seven of these associations have now been organized in all counties of the state excepting those that are most exclusively engaged in mining—Mohave, Coconino, Yavapai and Gila. However, it is without doubt true that in these regions, where farmers are few and far between, the improvement associations would be even more valuable to the farmers in proportion to the money spent than in the more populous counties where it is easy for farmers to get to see what the others are doing. The officers of the extension service intend to make a special effort this fall to promote the formation of farm improvement associations in this as yet unorganized section of the state. Professor E. P. Taylor, the new director of extension, who succeeds Professor Morse, is a western man of large experience in the fruit-growing districts of the Rocky Mountain region, and will soon be on the ground to take general charge of this work. Meantime, an effort will be made to get this movement under way at an early date. This is the time of year when roads are good and people can get together easily for the purpose of meetings in outlying districts for the purpose of getting new associations started.

Pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 111, Title XXVI Civil Code, Revised Statutes of Arizona, 1913, entitled "Juries and Jurors" notice is hereby given that the Honorable R. C. Stanford, Judge of Division No. 1 of the Superior Court of Maricopa County, State of Arizona, has made and filed in my office an order directing that a Grand Jury of twenty-one (21) be drawn, to be in attendance on said Court at 11 o'clock A. M., on Monday the 2nd day of October, 1916, and thereafter as their presence may be required; and that I have this day notified the Sheriff of Maricopa County, and the County Recorder of Maricopa County, State of Arizona, to attend at the Court Room of Division No. 1 of the Superior Court, in the Court House of Maricopa County, or in the room in which said Court is held, on Monday the 25th day of September, 1916, at the hour of 9:30 A. ## STILL GOING UP!

and the matter entered into for eleven feet.

No official assay has been given out by the management. H. E. Woods, formerly of Colorado, and one of the leading operators here who is operating the Nellie, stated to your representative today that the magnitude of the strike cannot be determined at this time.

He expressed the belief that the main, or what is more prominently known here as the Black Range vein has been encountered, and that the strike will prove to be one of the biggest events in this section of the country.

The Nellie was forced to stop work about three weeks ago owing to a strong flow of water. The management immediately purchased a pump and larger machinery, and early this week resumed the work. When the work was stopped they had reached the 350-foot level. With the new development, the operations will be pushed with great vigor and the extent of the new find will be defined.

Mining men here are overjoyed with the Nellie strike and figure it as the first real event in the Black Range belt. The Black Range mine, for which D. P. Wright, the president, refused $250,000, struck the ore shoot on the 300-foot level, but the work was halted pending the closing of negotiations with eastern interests.

The lack of operations of the Black Range spurred the management of the Nellie on and with this latest development, it places the Nellie in the limelight as the leading company in the Black Range district, seeking to uncover the massive ore sheet which engineers say underlies the Black Range Belt.

Surely it would seem advisable to locate small packing plants at several places in the state. These could be run by municipalities under proper inspection, and could supply concrete with outside competition. It is simply ridiculous to be compelled to ship our fat hogs to San Diego or Kansas City and have them returned to us in the form of bacon, ham or fresh or cured products at greatly enhanced prices.

The livestock industry will not be on a sound basis until further improvement is effected in regard to utilizing the finished animals for local trade. Dealers who purchase livestock know that they can deduct from local prices of animals the amount that it would cost to ship them alive to market, plus the return expense of the way car. Not only this expense must be borne, but also a liberal amount for slaughtering and packing the animals, as well as an amount left for profit for each of the middle-men along the way.

A public stockyards, controlled by the Cattle Growers' Association, could handle the cattle situation to advantage in Arizona. This association should have a head office situated at some central place such as Phoenix, and agents located in each shipping center. The present machinery for conducting the livestock sanitary board could be utilized to advantage for this purpose. These local agents could be informed by means of daily letters from the head office and whenever any of the local points had animals for sale it would be a simple matter to make this fact known. In this way the sanitary board would become the clearing house and livestock center of the cattle industry in the state. ## ROUNTREE ON DIVORCE ISSUE

The first of the monthly union services of the Tempe churches was held last evening at the Baptist church and a large congregation listened to an interesting discussion of "Marriage and Divorce," given by Rev. J. R. Rountree, pastor of the Christian church. The minister's address on this subject was timely in that a divorce measure is to be submitted to the voters of Arizona for their consideration at the November election.

Speaking of the reason for the discussion of the evening's subject Rev. Rountree said:

"I am one of the old fashioned folk who believe that everything in life should be submitted to a general consideration of its relation to the spiritual and the eternal. I believe that permanency can be secured and righteousness exalted only as we lift our eyes unto the hills whence cometh our help and lean upon the Author of Life for direction and inspiration in all our temporal and civil affairs. My inclinations are orthodox, not through any puritanical sanctimoniousness, but because I have observed that the truest development and growth in high ideals of living, have been attained by those people whose lives have been properly adjusted to the infinite. I mean properly adjusted; not like the hypocritical literalist or conceited bigot.

"My present interest in this discussion is aroused by the fact that someone has initiated a divorce measure for the consideration of the voters at the coming election. That is pernicious and should be defeated. I am looking at the question from the Christian viewpoint and do not mean to impugn the motives of the instigator of the measure. I am sure I will contain little that differs from the present law, adding but three new grounds for divorce, but it substitutes six months' residence in the state instead of one year, as being necessary before applying for divorce.

"Causes are suggested for divorces, both in the new and in the law, which should be impediments to entering the marital state and not means of dissolving it. Divorce laws are the result of bad marriage laws and should be placed before and not after marriage.

"The measure plans to add to the already numerous divorces in Arizona and maintain our reputation as a divorce state. These local agents could be informed by means of daily letters from the head office and whenever any of the local points had animals for sale it would be a simple matter to make this fact known. In this way the sanitary board would become the clearing house and livestock center of the cattle industry in the state. They would become well known and outside parties desiring to select animals would find that the sanitary board would be an easy means of making their wants known and securing the kind of stock they desired.
